3rd TFW Arrives Takes Command Of USAF Units

The 3rd Tactical Fighter Wing arrived here recently from England AFB, La., to assume operational control of U.S. Air Force units at this big Vietnamese Air Force base. The 3rd TFW is the oldest Air Force wing remaining on active duty since the day of its organization. It has served 22 of its 45 years overseas. The 3rd was organized July 1, 1919 as the Army Surveillance Group at Kelley Field, Tex.

Maj. Gen. Gilbert L. Meyers, deputy commander, 2nd Air Division, greeted Col. Robert A. Ackerly and the pilots of the 510th Tactical Fighter Squadron upon their landing at Bien Hoa AB. Music for the occasion was provided by the 1st Infantry Division Band, U.S. Army.

The 3rd TFW command team consists of Colo-

FORTY LOCAL NCO'S DON NEW STRIPES NEXT WEEK

Personnel officials announced here this week the names of 40 personnel who will sew on new stripes next Wednesday denoting their promotion to master and technical sergeants.

They were selected by a central selection board held at Pacific

Air Forces headquarters on Nov. 8, and had to compete against personnel from throughout the command.

Of the 40 personnel, 14 were promoted to master sergeant and 26 will don the five stripes of technical sergeant.

Promoted to master sergeant were Robert F. Quattlebaum and George W. Linto, both assigned to the 3rd Combat Support Group; Theodore J. Jensen, Charles L. Jordan, Thomas E. Knowles, Donald H. Mills, Glenn C. Raloff, Paul E. Roberts, Thomas A. Shepard and George W. Teagarden, 6251st Consol-

President Johnson Proclaims Nov. 28 Day Of Dedication

President Lyndon B. Johnson has proclaimed Sunday, Nov. 28, as a day of dedication and prayer honoring the men and women of South Viet-Nam, the United States and all other countries who are risking their lives to bring about a just peace in South Viet-Nam.

Proclamation of the special observance follows the sense of congressional resolutions that the President "set aside a national day of remembrance." The resolutions suggested that the observance be dedicated to those Americans who are committing their lives, blood and energies to the defense of World Peace.

In embracing not only Americans but people of all lands who are fighting for a just peace in South Viet-Nam, the proclamation states that "the United States and other nations are carrying on the honored tradition of defending a people's right to freedom..."

Although "the government of the United States remains ready without condition for the international discussions that can lead to lasting peace," the Proclamation states, "there can be no social justice or eco-

Policies Changed For Money Orders

All personnel purchasing money orders at the base Post Office will be required to fill in one copy of MACV Form 311 for each money order they purchase from now on.

This is the result of information recently passed down to local postal officials.

These forms will be in a stack next to the money order windows and should be filled

Gen. Ky Briefed on F-5s Here

Gen. Nguyen Kao Ky, South Viet-Nam's premier, got his first close look at the base's F-5 Freedom Fighters on a visit here Wednesday.

Col. Frank Emory, commander of the 4503d Tactical Fighter Squadron, briefed the premier and then escorted him to an F-5 parked for display on the flightline.

Arriving in helicopters for the occasion were numerous high-ranking Vietnamese and USAF officers. Among those attending were Lt. Gen. Joseph H. Moore, commander of the 2nd Air Division, Brig. Gen. Albert W. Schinz, chief of the Air Force advisory group, Col. T. V. Minh, deputy commander of VNAF, Brig. Gen. Nguyen Bao Tri, commanding general of III Corps and

"Unless the Lord build the house, they labor in vain who build it. Unless the Lord guard the city, in vain does the guard keep vigil..." (Psalm 126:1)

The words of the Sacred Scripture are memorable to many, especially to that generation of Americans who were witnesses to the assassination President John F. Kennedy. This quotation from the Bible was part of the address which was to be delivered at Dallas two years ago.

This Scripture passage is an eloquent testimony of faith which inspired the leadership of the 35th President of the United States. It is a faith in Almighty God who in his omnipotent providence guides and governs the destinies of individuals and nations.

This is a week of Thanksgiving, a week when we stop a moment to count our blessings. Everything we are, everything we have, everything we will be is a gift from God. As a nation we have been blessed with a prosperity and a freedom which the world has never known.

Today that freedom and that prosperity hangs in the balance, not only for us but for our friends and allies. Let us, then, not fail in prayer to God, "For more things are wrought by prayer that this world dreams of..."

Christ made our dependence clear at the Last Supper when he said, "I am the vine and you are the branches...abide in me and I in you...for without me you can do nothing. Let our week of Thanksgiving be a week of prayer for "Unless the Lord guard the city, vain does the guard keep vigil..."

EDITORIAL

(The following editorial was written by L. W. Rush, U.S. Air Force Security Service Historian for the Air Force News Service.)

SECURITY

Operations by U.S. military forces in Viet-Nam daily emphasize the importance of the security of military information.

Every person, military or civilian, who has access to military information is personally responsible for its security. Safeguarding classified information cannot be left solely to a security organization, agency or unit. In fact, no other responsibility in the military services needs to be put more on a personal basis than that of security.

Our military establishment is so large and complex that it is easy to become so involved in routine and uninspiring tasks that we do not think about the people who depend on us.

Not only in Viet-Nam but all over the world, people depend on us to do our job—not the least of which is insuring the security of information entrusted to us by virtue of our jobs.

Plei Me, Dong Hoi, and Vinh have a faraway ring to them. But so did Seoul, Pyongyang, Guadalcanal and Anzio.

The tendency to become personally unconcerned with the security of military information when the military action is so distant is not new. For example, in 1776, Gen. George Washington told Patrick Henry Lee that "It is among the difficult tasks I ever undertook in my life to induce these people to believe that there is or can be danger, until the bayonet is pushed at their breasts."

Call it loyalty, call it patriotism or call it courage if you will, because security certainly requires all of these.

But to give security the vitality that makes it effective demands a personal enthusiasm for freedom and a willingness to defend it in every way that we can. Careless talk — whether induced by complacency, desire for personal recognition, or thoughtlessness — can be security's number one enemy.

One careless word about military information, in itself, may be totally insignificant. The horseshoe nail, by itself, also was insignificant — but for the lack of it, a nation was lost. (AFNS)

Housewife Offers To Write Letters

Editor's Note: A2C Robert D. Hofmann, 3rd Civil Engineering Squadron, received a letter recently from Mrs. Fred Quast of Pittsburgh, Pa., requesting the names and addresses of personnel stationed here who wish to receive mail and news from the states. Personnel interested may contact Mrs. Quast at the address listed below. Her letter in part is printed below.)

"Dear Airman Hofmann;

"There are people in Pittsburgh (myself included) who would like to write to G.I.s in Vietnam, but trying to find an address to mail our letters to is next to impossible. I am writing to you for help. If you know anyone where you are who would like some mail please let me know.

"Most of us are housewives with families which keep us pretty well tied to home so we are limited as to what we can do. But we can write letters and give news from home.

"Please let me know if you can help any.

"I would like to add that at my prayers and thoughts are with all of you men everyday. I hope this is over soon.

"Yours, Nancy J. Quast, 726 MacFarlane Dr., Pittsburgh, Pa. 15235."

New Ejection Seat Tested

Air Force Reserve Maj. James C. Hall has performed the first human test of a zero altitude-zero airspeed ejection seat designed to save pilots of aircraft disabled either on the ground or at extremely low altitudes.

The new ejection system employs a rocket that boosts the pilot to 300 to 400 feet of altitude and a gun deployment mechanism that provides rapid opening of a parachute.

The test was carried out by Weber Aircraft Co., at Los Angeles, after more than 40 tests using dummies.

Data Systems Section In Operation Here

A new section, data systems and statistics, headed by Capt. David B. Williams, has been added to the 3rd Combat Support Group here.

The section is staffed by 16 personnel and went into operation last Saturday.

According to Captain Williams, the section's first project is to activate a mechanized base supply account for Bien Hoa AB. When this is complete, requests for supplies will go directly from here to the states instead of through intermediate bases as in the past.

Another of the unit's functions is to monitor all RCS reports prepared on the base, to insure that all reports are mailed out on time.

A management analysis program is also planned for the section, which will provide local commanders with up-to-date data statistics on all base activities.

To carry out their mission the section presently has 15 IBM punch card machines in operation.

SMSGt. Joseph C. Pine is noncommissioned officer-in-charge of the new section.

Party Honors New Medical Building

A large cake was cut here last Saturday denoting the opening of the new addition to the Base Dispensary.

Col. Joseph M. Martin, commander, 3rd Combat Support Group, and Capt. Calvin C. Chapman, director of base medical services, shared the cake cutting honors before dispensary personnel and invited guests.

With the large increase in USAF personnel here, the medical care requirements also increased greatly, taxing the dispensary to provide space enough to store supplies as well as furnish high quality medical treatment.

The addition was approved for construction in September, and the Air Defense Command "Prime Beef" team, headed by Capt. James A. Godwin, that arrived in November made it their first project.

The new area is primarily a storage area, but some offices have been included on a temporary basis.

The addition will aid dispensary personnel in maintaining high standards in quality and quantity of medical care available to military personnel stationed here.

FAC Accumulates 100 Missions In Two Months

An Air Force forward air controller assigned to the 173rd Airborne Brigade near here has accumulated a lot of flying in two months over 100 missions, or an average of 1.6 per day.

Capt. Jerry G. Malloy, has directed over 90 strikes during this period from his O-1F "Birdog" observation plane.

On one particular sortie, Captain Malloy directed 32 USAF strike aircraft to a target which resulted in 80 Viet Cong killed by air and an estimated 100 wounded.

A former F-86 pilot, the captain is married and has four children.

About Viet-Nam Wealth In Jars

Every tribal home has its gongs and jars, chiefly used for ceremonies and festivals. The gongs, as you guessed, are for making noise and the jars hold various household supplies and are used to brew an alcoholic holiday drink for community celebrations, like the arrival of strangers, a buffalo sacrifice, or any other likely reason. Sometimes Americans have been invited to attend these ceremonies only to find that the guest of honor is expected to pay a modest sum for the alcohol. So — be prepared!

The mixture is brewed by putting the branch of a special tree or bush in the jar, then alcohol, and then filling the jar to the brim with water from a nearby creek. You then sit with the male villagers in a circle around the jar. Each person in turn, beginning with the village chief, takes a generous swig from the jar through a bent, bamboo straw that is often over six feet long (everybody using the same straw, of course). As each person drinks, a designated villager uses a dipper to transfer water from a nearby pot to the jar, being careful to refill the jar to the brim each time. Thus the drinking may continue indefinitely, yet the jar always remains full.

After the first round, you can stop drinking without giving offense. The drink is not strong, and should affect you only if taken in great quantity. These drinking celebrations often accompany animal sacrifices.

nel Ackerly, commander; Col. Woodward Wilson, deputy commander for operations; and Col. Emmett Theisen, deputy commander for materiel.

The 6251st TFW, former parent unit here, has been replaced by the new wing. The 3rd Combat Support Group, in charge of base housekeeping facilities, supersedes the 6251st CSG. Also transferred with the 3rd TFW are the 3rd Organizational Maintenance Squadron, 303rd Munitions Maintenance Squadron, 3rd Armament and Electronics Maintenance Squadron, and 3rd Field Maintenance Squadron.

Col. Philip Brooks, commander of the 6251st TFW, has been reassigned to the 2d ADiv directorate of operations. Col. Charles Simpson, deputy commander for operations and Col. Carl R. Willey, deputy commander for materiel, will also assume other duties with the ADiv, the organization charged with U.S. Air Force operations in Viet-Nam. Col. Joseph M. Martin remains as commander of the 3rd CSG.

Base Photo Hobby Shop Opened Here

A new base photo hobby shop has been opened here in Building 421, the same building as the library.

It is one of the many facilities under the supervision of Personnel Services that can be used by base personnel during their off-duty hours.

The new hobby shop is staffed by three enlisted personnel on a part time basis. They are SSgt. Joseph L. Guerette, who is in charge; SSgt. Raymond L. Fillmore, and A2C James Robey. Sergeant Guerette and Airmen Robey are assigned to the Civil Engineering electrical shop and Sergeant Fillmore works in the base control tower.

Hours of operation for the photo hobby shop are from 1 p.m. to 10:30 p.m. Monday thru Saturday, and from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. on Sunday.

According to Sergeant Guerette, "The shop is limited to black and white photography at the present time, but steps are being taken to acquire the necessary equipment to handle color work as well."

The shop also has a portrait section with lights, tripods and other equipment furnished.

Personnel desiring to use the facility should make an appointment for the time they desire to use it.

Secretary Of Defense Sends Congratulations

Congratulations have been received from several high-ranking officials for local participation in last January's National Health Agencies Campaign.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara said the 1965 drive was the "the most successful in the campaign's history."

Gen. Hunter Harris, commander-in-chief, Pacific Air Forces, said that "all personnel, particularly the campaign project officers and key workers, are to be congratulated for their generous support in behalf of this humanitarian appeal."

Lt. Gen. Joseph Moore, commander of 2nd Air Division, said that the drive was a success throughout the division.

"Surely, the same hard work during the American Overseas Campaign, presently in progress, will again result in a display of generosity of which we can all be proud," General Moore said.

Col. Joseph M. Martin, 3rd Combat Support Group Commander, also added his thanks to base project officers and key workers for their part in the drive.

Crash Recovery Section Is 'Godsend' To Pilots

"That runway has to be kept clear at all times," explained MSgt. Norman C. Merrill, NCOIC of the Crash Recovery section of the 6251st Consolidated Aircraft Maintenance Squadron, "that's our main job."

Sergeant Merrill, a veteran of over 19 years active service, explained the duties of his 12-man crew. "Our day starts long before daylight, the first flights are usually airborne about 5 a.m. In case of trouble on takeoff, we've got to be ready to move that plane out of the way in a hurry."

"We had an F-100 come in the other day all shot up. The pilot was wounded in the left leg, and when he touched down, he couldn't use his left brake at all. He ran off the right side of the runway, and we were right there waiting for him. Another F-100 had one brake lock when he hit the runway. His other brake got so hot that it caught fire, then he went into the barrier. Anytime a plane has extensive battle damage, or maybe a hydraulic failure, the pilot shoots for the barrier."

Emphasizing to his men that no two accidents are the same, Sergeant Merrill is constantly training them on every type aircraft that flies in and around Vietnam. They've got to know what to do in case of any emergency. There's seldom a second chance for these men. If they fail on their job, a life could be lost.

Capt. James R. Spatafora, officer-in-charge of Field Maintenance, praised the men of Crash Recovery to the highest degree. "As far as I am concerned, there's no finer recovery unit in the Far East," he said. "They've cleared a wreck off the runway in as little as three minutes. To a pilot circling for landing with a minimum of fuel left after a combat mission, they're a Godsend," he added.

Practice courtesy to your neighbor — both on and off base.

Rice, Eddie Gilchrist, John C. Doyle, James E. Hanner, Kenneth R. Honecutt, Jerome A. Kerle, Kenneth J. Miller, Artis Morman, James R. Richter, Robert E. Schmitz, Donald W. Short and David R. Smith.

Airmen Third Class Robert Huggins, John S. Davis and Darrell E. Colvin.

SPOTLIGHT

The Bugle Spotlight this week falls on A2C Thomas R. Warren, an administrative clerk in the Headquarters Squadron Section, 3rd Combat Support Group orderly room.

Airman Warren arrived at Bien Hoa on May 9, after spending approximately three years at Nellis AFB, Nev., where he had worked in base publications and as a clerk in an orderly room.

The 27-year-old native of Erie, Pa., took his basic training at Sampson AFB, N. Y., and attended the administrative tech school at Francis E. Warren AFB, Wyo.

Airman has had one other overseas tour, serving three years at different bases in France and Germany.

His brother, A1C Norman A. Warren is also stationed here with the same squadron and works in Materiel.

He is married to the former Margot Bjorling of Sweden, and they have three children, two girls and one boy. His family is residing in Erie, Pa.

SCOREBOARD

The combat scoreboard for the week of Nov. 16-22 is given below:

There were 351 missions flown, destroying 649 Viet Cong structures, and damaging 701, which resulted in 35 secondary explosions. There were 33 sampans destroyed, 24 damaged and 183 VC killed by air.

NASA is seeking the negotiation of contracts for studies of an instrument to analyze and control a two-gas atmosphere for manned spacecraft instead of just utilizing one gas-oxygen.

Basketball action during the week saw Materiel Squadron knock Air Police from the undefeated ranks with a 32-21 victory Wednesday night.

The Air Police entered the game with a perfect 3-0 record but could not get rolling against their steamed-up opponents. High point honors for the game went to Robert Lambert of Materiel with 12. David Sargent led the Air Police with six points.

In Monday night's action Materiel Squadron defeated 1877th Communications Squadron by a score of 33-26. Robert Charles led the winners with 11 points while Tom O'Brien had 12 for the losers.

Air Police Squadron and Headquarters Squadron Section both entered Tuesday night's game undefeated. The Policemen came away with an easy 49-36 victory after having been tied at halftime 18-18.

The Air Police used a running type game to wear their opponents down and pull away for the victory. Jack Ciesluk and David Sargent both had 14 points for the winners while William Bennett also scored 14 for Headquarters Squadron.

Next week's schedule is as follows:

Evaluation Group Needs Volunteers

Pacific Air Forces Headquarters is seeking volunteers from among Southeast Asia combat veterans to serve on the Tactics Evaluation Team, located at Kadena Air Base, Okinawa (6002nd Standard Evaluation Group).

The group is responsible for collection, evaluation and dissemination of new tactics developed in Southeast Asia. In assigning this mission to the 6002nd SEG, Gen. Hunter Harris, PACAF commander in chief, stated that it was very important that formal publication of these "new lessons learned" be given highest priority. To effectively accomplish this mission, combat pilots who have completed tours in Southeast Asia are needed to serve a concurrent tour at Kadena AB.

Pilots in F-100, F-4C, B-57, O-1F and C-47 are presently needed.

Personnel completing tours or forecasting, who are interested, are urged to contact the unit commander, 6002nd SEG, immediately.

The 6002nd Stan/Eval Group is commanded by Col. Robert R. Scott.
